

Reflective Writing

Reflective Writing

Read the example of reflective writing in the box. Then write a paragraph in the spaces below. Use correct sentence structure.

Did you know that rocks move? The earth on which we are standing is actually moving a few centimetres a year. Imagine how much force that these huge land masses must have! When they rub against each other, they can heat up and change the type of rocks to a totally new type. That's how Australian opals were formed from mud. I thought geology was for boring old people but I've discovered that I can have a profitable career in mining and learn a lot about the world around me.

Did you know that rocks _____

The interesting thing that happened in science the other day was
